Question 3

Question	Answer	Mark	level
3.	Cars release exhaust fumes into the air which is harmful to people and the environment. When people breathe these fumes, it damages their lungs, they can't breathe properly, and they get sick quicker. Fumes rise into the air and form part of raindrops. When this reaches the earth it's called acid rain- which is poisonous to plants and animals. When fumes in the air rise very high, it allows more UV rays from the sun to get to earth. When this happens, we call it global warming.	2	High
